Mitch Holmes studies the intersection of Dundas and Richmond streets yesterday while standing in front of One Stop, the hair salon he owns at 177 Dundas St. Holmes is concerned about increased crime, largely drug activity, in the area around his business. "It's just brutal," Holmes said. "The city's just not focusing on the right action to clear it up."

Calls for help ring out WOA

► Stopping downtown crime, drugs not as simple as arresting 'the drug dealer': Police

Coun. Stephen Orser may have started a movement.

His effort to put surveillance cameras on Dundas Street between Adelaide and Rectory has people on the west side of downtown calling for action. But Mitch Holmes doesn't think cameras are the answer.

"I put cameras out back, (people) smash them down," he said referring to his hair salon.

But, Holmes said, something needs to be done about increased crime, largely drug activity, in the area around his business. He and others who live and work in the downtown core acknowledge they don't have the answer.

Coun. Denise Brown touched on the issues at Monday's council meeting during a discussion about spending millions of dollars to spruce up downtown for the 2013

World Figure Skating Championships.

Improving the streetscape in the area will make the city look good for national media and tourists, Brown said. But, "if you just take a little turn" into the alley between Dundas and Covent Garden Market, "there's drugs and a lot of pan-handlers," she said.

Holmes suggests more police patrols would be a start.

Police, however, say they have increased foot patrols in the downtown core and are laying charges—ranging from trespassing to those tied to drugs — every single day.

"We do our best to assign the required resources, but at the end of the day we still have a whole city to police," Insp. Chris Newton said. "There is no one answer to drug addiction and its related crime."

'Intolerable' area: Resident

Christine Cochrane-Farmer has lived near Dundas and William streets for 20 years.

She can't afford to move. If she could, she might. "It's getting to the point where it's ... intolerable," she said about drug use in her neighbourhood. "There's needles all over the place."

So many, Cochrane-Farmer said, that the tires on her husband's electric wheelchair have been flattened as he tried to travel city streets. ANGELA MULLINS

Have experience, will work

► Man peddling resumés instead of panhandling for cash ► Experience has shown him the 'warmer side of humanity,' 'compassion' and 'concern'

► Art James, 45, left, talks with Mark Blackler, 36, both of London, yesterday at Richmond and Dundas streets. James has been unemployed since March and started handing resumes out at the intersection Tuesday. Blackler stopped to share a possible job lead and pick up some resumes to share with people he knows.

ANGELA MULLINS
@METRONEWS.CA

Art James isn't looking for a handout.

He's looking for a hand up, as the saying goes.

Out of work since March, James is taking his job search to the streets, setting up shop at Richmond and Dundas streets with a handwritten message that sums up his story.

"I don't want you spare change. I need a job,"

"The number of resumes I've handed out (since Tuesday) is relatively small. But the energy that's gone out is good. There have been some good leads."

ART JAMES

reads a sign he's holding. "Please take a resume."

James, 45, of London started his campaign Tuesday and plans to be on the street corner until Friday.

If nothing solid has surfaced by then, James plans to move to Wonderland and Exeter to catch people as they head to work.

"I've never really had faith in traditional job-search methods," he said yesterday. "You find yourself in a (big pool of applicants), and you can't get recognized. You gotta be able to get past that first light."

The resume he's peddling is quite lengthy. James has about 15 years as a tool-and-die maker. Before that, he worked in a kitchen as a chef, line cook and dishwasher.

Times are getting desperate, James said.

"I have rent paid through (the end of) October," he said. "After that, I don't know."

Hydro boss wants free Wi-Fi

Victoria Park could soon get Wi-Fi, if London Hydro's CEO Vinay Sharma has his way.

If a proposed a five-year pilot project is approved by London Hydro board members at a Sept. 27 meeting, anyone in Victoria Park or neighbouring streets could have access to free, high-speed Internet.

Sharma said he's optimistic the proposal will be approved. If that happens, the Wi-Fi network could be available by the end of this year. The pilot project comes at a cost of $100,000 — or $20,000 annually — to cover maintenance and operating expenses. The network would be capable of having as many as 500 users accessing free Wi-Fi in and around Victoria Park at any one time. AM980/AM980.CA

Police look for man in knife attack

Police were searching the Pittcock Trail area on the south side of Pittcock Lake in Woodstock for a man allegedly involved in a knife attack.

A woman reported being attacked yesterday morning and is in Woodstock General Hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. Woodstock and provincial police officers set up a perimeter from Tecumseh Street to County Road 4. A canine unit was combing the trail for a suspect.

The woman gave police only a vague description of her alleged assailant — young, dressed in black and armed with a knife.

BUBBLE SKIRTS, POODLE PERMS, DYNASTY ... AH, THE '80S

LONDON
STYLESARAH FRANCIS
METRO LONDON

As a kid of the '80s, I'll always have a soft spot for tapered jeans and huge hair. Every time I see a safety pin, I remember painstakingly pinning my acid-wash jeans, teasing my Barbie's hair until she begged for mercy and lust after Kevin Bacon. He totally missed out.

So when I found out that the Grand Theatre was bringing back Footloose, I was pretty stoked. The High School Project features talented local kids in the movie-turned-musical about Ren, a big-city kid who moves to the Midwestern town of Bomont where drinking and dancing are strictly off limits. Ren falls in love with Ariel, the preacher's daughter, and you can probably guess what happens next. They do the Running Man, of course.

Me, I like my '80s fashion two ways: As a distant memory by way of MC Hammer videos or as super-rad costumes.

Luckily, the cast and crew of Footloose haven't underestimated the need to get the '80s look just right. The Grand's head of wardrobe, Lisa Wright, and the students tracked down the very best of the era at London's thrift shops and the results are like a trip down memory lane — tight jeans, leg warmers, shoulder pads and neon brights mixed with loads of big '80s hair. With 41 cast members in the show, I just hope they've bought enough Aqua Net hairspray to go around.

After you see the show, you might want to cut loose in a few '80s trends. Before you do, keep these tips in mind:

1. Tone down this fall's neon brights with navy, olive or nude.

2. New penny loafers look more chic than scuffed up, thanks to suede and lady-like heeled styles.

- 3) Think cropped leather jackets, denim shirts and loads of fringe belong in early-'80s Bomont? Thanks to trend-setter Isabel Marant's fall runway show, the kids of Footloose might want to hang on to their costumes. Just saying ... Sarah Francis is the style maven behind realliferunway.com. She also reports on the latest trends for White Oaks Mall.

Security guards at the entrance to the 30-kilometre exclusion zone have a list of rules for our group as we wait to enter the contaminated area.

"Do not touch anything, wear long sleeves and closed-toe shoes." This is followed by a stern caution from the guide taking UN Development Programme volunteers inside. "Remember, you are not tourists here."

After the recent

Fukushima disaster in Japan, the International Atomic Energy Agency announced this week a projected slowdown on the growth of nuclear power. Chornobyl to this day is evidence of what happens when things go wrong.

More than 25 years after the Chornobyl meltdown, about 3,500 people are still required at the plant just to keep safety mechanisms operating. It can't be fully shut down. Another 3,000 work as maintenance, security and decontamination staff outside of it — although they only work two weeks a month, due to high radiation levels.

Standing in front of reactor No. 4, which is enclosed in an aging, rusted tomb called the "sarcophagus," our beeping hand-held dosimeter shows external radiation levels to be about 30 times higher than in the capital, Kyiv.

"But this isn't the most radioactive place we will see," the guide says with a sardonic grin. "I will show you where it's much higher."

To avoid panic, residents were told they would be returning to their homes, so they packed light. Their belongings were left to decay, were destroyed in the decontamination process or were stolen by looters. Some personal items are still strewn amid the rubble — Soviet posters, children's books, an old tennis shoe in the Cultural Centre's gymnasium. The town today is just decrepit buildings amid overgrown foliage.

Wind farm ruined our health, family claims

CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

A southwestern Ontario family is suing over a wind farm they claim is damaging their health.

The Michaud family of Thamesville claims they have suffered vertigo, nausea and sleep disruption caused by the Kent Breeze wind farm.

The wind farm, which began operating in May 2011, consists of eight turbines, the closest of which is 1,146 metres from the Michauds' property.

In a statement of claim filed Tuesday in Toronto, the Michauds claim the wind farm constitutes a nuisance and is a non-natural use of the neighbouring property.

► Lisa and Michel Michaud of Thamesville have launched the lawsuit against the Kent Breeze wind farm.

The statement of claim, which contains allegations that haven't been proven in court, says the effects of the wind farm have caused pain and suffering and loss of enjoyment of normal use of their property.

"We don't want to leave and have to start new somewhere else," Lisa Michaud said yesterday.

Last week, a southwestern Ontario couple went to court saying they're being blocked in their efforts to determine if wind turbines cause any adverse health effects.

Shawn and Tricia Drennan's farm north of Goderich sits in the proposed Kingsbridge II wind farm and one turbine will be about 650 metres from their house.

The Drennans want the court to void non-disclosure agreements.

APPLE NEWS

Latest iPhone en route?

Apple hasn't said when it will release the next version of the iPhone, but former U.S. vice-president and current Apple Inc. board member Al Gore believes new iPhones will be here in October.

Gore spoke yesterday at the Discovery Invest

Leadership Summit in Johannesburg, South Africa. Toby Shapshak, the editor of Stuff Magazine's South African edition, said Gore's mention of "the new iPhones coming out next month" was a plug for the product.

Gore's comments, which Shapshak said he recorded on his iPhone, were reported earlier by TheNextWeb. If Gore is right, that could indicate Apple will introduce more than one model.

An Apple spokesman declined to comment.

Ciggie ads could go up in smoke

U.S. FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

► Two of the new warning labels cigarette makers may have to use on packages by the fall of 2012.

A U.S. judge peppered a government lawyer with questions yesterday expressing doubts about whether the Food and Drug Administration can force tobacco companies to post images on their cigarette packages showing the effects of smoking.

At question is whether the nine graphic images proposed by the FDA convey just the facts about the risks of smoking or go beyond that into advocacy.

They include a cloud of cigarette smoke within inches of a baby's face and a dead smoker on an autopsy table with surgical stitches in his chest.

If the judge concludes the images amount to advocacy, it's more likely that the tobacco companies can stop the latest regulation move. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Netflix seals Discovery and TLC shows

The non-exclusive agreement, which Netflix signed with Discovery Communications, will let members stream the shows over the Internet to their TVs and computers.

The agreement also covers the channels Investigation Discovery, Science and Military Channel, and includes shows such as TLC's Say Yes to the Dress and Animal Planet's River Monsters.

Netflix has been under fire this week for its decision to separate its Internet streaming division from its DVD-by-mail division.

A Munich consumer watchdog group says Oktoberfest revellers are being shorted on beer at the famous Bavarian beer festival.

In a test of 100 standard mass mugs conducted by the Association Against Fraudulent Pouring — a group that's been running for more than a century — not one was full, the organization said yesterday.

Help us Breathe Life into the October 6 Election

Every day, people in Ontario are struggling to breathe because of lung disease; many are children.

While our health care system has many strengths, modest investments in lung health could make it even better.

The Ontario Lung Association and our partners have estimated that for every $1 invested in lung health, $3 in future healthcare costs could be saved.

Small investment, big, healthy return.

Good for taxpayers and welcome news to the more than 3.4 million Ontarians living with lung disease.

Sound like a plan? It could be.

We are calling on the next government to establish an

Ontario Lung Health Action Plan.

It would include spending our hard-earned tax dollars in the most efficient way possible, making the most of what already works well and making sure it's available to everyone.

Before October 6, encourage your candidates to support lung health.

LISTEN, YOU DON'T WANT TO UPSET THIS TEACHER

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

Hi, kids! I'm here to talk to your class about teachers because they're important people to ... HEY! SHUT UP AND LISTEN!

I'm not a teacher, so I can say that. So no talking, eyes front, iPhones on vibrate, safety on all weapons.

Teachers change your life, kids. They help burst the protective bubble that parents have been building around you in the hope that you would never discover drugs, Darwin or Megan Fox.

Yet some of you give teachers a hard time and ... hey! No cheering!

This is what I mean. Teachers enter the profession filled with idealism but leave the classroom cynical and dispirited — usually by lunch hour.

One in three Canadian teachers leaves the profession after five years. I said NO CHEERING! Most get jobs in more relaxing professions, such as bomb disarmament. "I snap the wires and can feel my self unwind," one former teacher said.

No one cares about teachers, kids — not even adults. A teacher can be in the news because a deranged student bit off his nose, and all the adults watching will think, "Wish I got summers off."

Many teachers have cracked. Unfortunately for you, I have the solution. The problem is teachers have been treating you as allies.

Meanwhile, you ripped up the teacher-student contract, made it into spitballs, and fired them through the Empty Pen Casing of Disrespect.

Well, your reign of terror is over.

See, I remember which teachers got respect. It wasn't the nice ones who wanted to help. Those teachers crumbled like the Wagon Wheels in my packed lunch.

No, the teachers in control were the ones who had an aura of menace: Dr. Dunn, whose title stirred up dread; Mr. Comeau, whose possibly apocryphal history of teenage knife fights awed us all; and Mr. Smith, whose unblinking eyes said, "You cannot comprehend how little I think of you."

The thing is, none of these teachers did anything threatening. They barely raised their voices. But there was always the fear of ... well, we weren't sure, but we knew it would be a Bad Thing.

So get ready, students. I'll be sharing this secret with teachers and they'll be spreading rumours about themselves nationwide. Principal Peterson? He has a punishment called "The Belt Buckle of Death." Miss McIntyre? Out on parole. And don't get Mr. Banner angry. You won't like him if he's angry.

Teachers will regain control, and they'll be able to get back to what they do best: pushing you up a grade regardless of merit.

Now, class, let's open our books to Megan Fox ...

Worth Mentioning

U.S. REAL ESTATE. In America, it's starting to feel as if there are two housing markets. One for the rich and one for everyone else.

Consider foreclosure-ravaged Detroit. In the historic Green Acres district, a haven for hipsters, a pristine, three-bedroom brick Tudor recently sold for $6,000 US.

Yet just 25 kilometres away, in the posh suburban enclave of Birmingham, bidding wars are back. Multimillion-dollar mansions are selling quickly. Sales this August were up 21 per cent from the previous year.

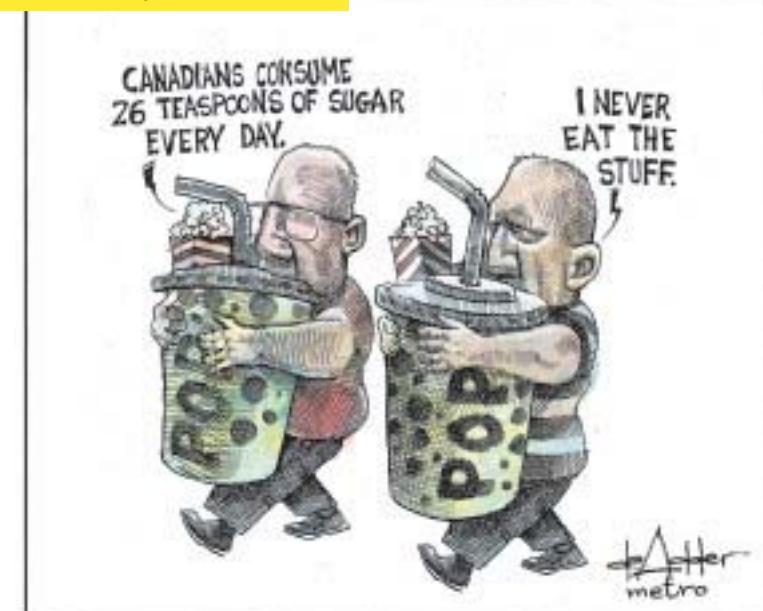

In the luxury sector, the recession is a memory and sales and prices are rising. But everywhere else, the market is moving sideways or getting worse.

In the housing market inhabited by most Americans, prices have fallen 30 per cent or more since the peak in 2007. That's a steeper decline than during the Depression.

Almost a quarter of American homeowners owe more on their house than it's worth. Another quarter have less than 20 per cent equity.

"LondonFuse is a non-profit platform," he says. "And we're now trying to get to a place where it is sustainable and one of those ways is through fundraising."

All proceeds from the event will go toward the costs of operating the site, covering things like server expenses and workspace.

For Saturday's event

LondonFuse put a call out into the community asking artists of all skill levels to submit pieces 12 inches by 12 inches in size, mimicking the dimensions of an LP cover.

"I thought it would be appropriate to do this show because it's fusing together arts and music and all the aspects that (the site) covers," says Bonnie Goodden, a volunteer with LondonFuse and part of the team behind the event.

"We actually have some fairly prolific artists contributing," Stenning says, citing submissions by local artists Jason McLean, Peter Thompson, Paul Walde, James Kirkpatrick and Bill Young.

"It's a good show of artists of all ranges," Goodden adds.

Submissions are still being accepted for Saturday's event, just email submissions@londonfuse.ca if you'd like to contribute.

"I think London has a fantastic art community," Stenning says. "But some people are afraid to get involved. There is a lot amazing talent in the city and we wanted to provide a platform where those artists, who are maybe afraid to show their work, could get involved."

"Making an open call is important to us," Goodden says. "All ages and all disciplines — as long as it's LP dimensions it could be crotched!"

The LondonFuse fundraiser starts at 8 p.m. with performances by three local bands. Cover is $5.

► Sarah Michelle Gellar's new role in Ringer has her jumping wardrobes

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Fans of Sarah Michelle Gellar have double the reason to tune in to her new drama, Ringer. In this relationship-driven thriller, the former Buffy the Vampire Slayer star plays identical twins — Bridget, a former addict who is on the run after witnessing a murder, and Siobhan, a New York City socialite with a seemingly perfect life. When Siobhan goes missing after the estranged sisters had just begun to reconcile, Bridget assumes her twin's identity, only to learn Siobhan was hiding more than a few dark secrets of her own.

That essentially means Gellar is playing three characters in the series — Bridget, Siobhan, and Bridget-pretending-to-be-Siobhan.

She's got a clear favourite

"Whoever has the best wardrobe at the time," Gell-lar jokes.

Of course, it's a little more complex than Gucci versus Gap. Gellar relates playing the sisters to parenting children since "you have to love each one individually and understand (the one you're playing at the time)," she explains.

Brad's marriage comments have team Jen fuming

► Source says Aniston's handlers 'went ballistic' after Pitt's interview appeared in Parade Magazine ► Brad's apology not enough

Jennifer Aniston wasn't pleased with ex-husband Brad Pitt's comments to Parade magazine about their marriage last week, according to Us Weekly.

"She was annoyed. She thought it was rude and inappropriate," a source says.

But her team of handlers and publicists "went ballistic" — and haven't been satisfied with Pitt's mea culpa after the fact, according to another source.

"No one believes his words were taken out of context. He said what he said," the source says.

"We think he's jealous she's in love."

► Sarah Jessica Parker

Sarah Jessica Parker has a foolproof way to cope with stress, but she's embarrassed about it.

"I talk to myself. Constantly," she tells People magazine.

"Both my babysitter and I talk to ourselves, and we're constantly apologizing for it."

The mom of three also say she's been learning a lot about parenting — even if it isn't sticking.

"I now know how much time it really takes to get the kids up in the morning," she says.

"But I still do it at the last minute, so there you go. I've learned nothing."

Pattinson eyes music

Robert Pattinson is reportedly gearing up to embark on a music career, according to Us Weekly.

"Rob has been kicking a few original songs around for a long time, but his schedule didn't allow it," a source says. "Now he's got some weeks to get everything in line before going back to promoting Breaking Dawn."

And apparently it's an activity he's been yearning for. "Music is his first love," says a second source.

► Rosie O'Donnell

Rosie has a new lady in her life

It isn't just her upcoming talk show on Oprah Winfrey's network that has Rosie O'Donnell smiling.

The outspoken host also reportedly has a new lady in her life, according to People magazine. O'Donnell stepped out recently with new girlfriend

"They met at a Starbucks a few months ago," a source says. "They are adorable together and are very, very happy."

BEST TAKE ON SPORTY: NICOLE FARHI

Spring's biggest trend has looked a bit young and junior at some shows. But Farhi made it look clean, polished and cool for 9-to-5ers who can't necessarily get away with wearing see-through mesh jerseys and patchwork leggings in the office. Her clean, crisp, minimalist shorts, blouses and dresses in white- and lemon-coloured cotton made a strong case for simplicity.

TOPSHOP UNIQUE

Philip Green's high street extravaganza feels like a hotter and hotter ticket with each season. A pre-show cocktail hour filled with snacks, bubbly and famous faces (Anna Wintour, Naomi Campbell and Kelis) set the stage for what ended up feeling like one big party. The clothes were a clever mix of urban street wear and opulent Egyptian references.

NEW NAME TO KNOW:
J.W. ANDERSON

The Brit has only been designing women's wear for a little over a year, but is already on the tongues of nearly every major editor. The biggest selling point: Unusually constructed clothing that boasts rarefied craftsmanship, at affordable prices. Keep an eye out for his patchworked leather, mesh and cotton jackets and trousers.

BIGGEST CROWD
PLEASER:
CHRISTOPHER
KANE

He showed a subversive take on those lady-like, A-line brocade dresses that dominated the '60s by slicing them and inserting sheer panels, tricking them out with crystal embroidery and plastering them with plastic flowers (kind of like your grandmother's old shower curtains.) They were expertly constructed and looked unlike anything else shown in the past two weeks.

MOST SURPRISING:
BURBERRY

It was a bit of a shock to see models walk down Burberry Prorsum's runway in wild wax prints and traditional African shapes. This is Burberry, after all, a brand that waves its old English heritage around like the friend you have who never misses a chance to remind you that she's a descendant of [insert name of old, titled, moneyed family here.] That said, the new look breathed some life into the house's repertoire.

Art Deco style

► The mix of modern and luxury collided between the two world wars

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@
METRONEWS.CA

I love to buy interesting-looking furniture that has a story, history or is from an era back in time.

Although I like older things I tend to veer toward modern lines, which can be hard to find when you love vintage and antique furnishings.

Enter my new best friend: the Art Deco era.

The furniture was simple in design and glamourous to look at. Exotic woods, shagreen, ebony and ivory were just a few of the exotic elements that made Art Deco furnishings so special.

Clean lines, unfussy style and patterns make for an easy to live with aesthetic for anyone who wants a bit of history and a modern look in their space.

► Ralph Lauren uses many Art Deco elements.

► Barbara Barry Side Table, $3,100, Baker Furniture

Starburst Mirror, $190, Sears

► Grayson Chair, $840, Crate and Barrel.

► Elite Floor Grates, $18, Home Depot

A little history:

Classic simplicity

Characteristics of the Art Deco style:

- Simple, clean lines
- Slight arched tops, light brass or gold accents
- Masculine colours like black, brown or grey
- Walnut brown wood stains, high-gloss finishes

► Although Hollywood made the Art Deco look famous, the clean-lined luxurious era was invented in Paris. ► Art Deco has influenced fashion, interior design, architecture, industrial design and visual arts. It resurfaced in the 1980s with black lacquered furnishings.

Get the look:

- Art Deco is a minimalist, uncluttered look.
- Use streamlined furniture, geometric patterns and sweeping curves.

- Decorate with rich red, black or any dark lacquered wood, table trays and serving platters.

- Upholster furniture in solid colour fabric, or use geometric patterned fabrics for cushions or chairs.
- Animal printed carpets and accessories are a perfect choice.

- Use curvaceous accessories like vases and sculptures to break up all the clean, straight lines.
- Inject a stylized sunburst shape — nowadays often as a decorative mirror.

Preparation:

1 Cherry Rhubarb Compote: In saucepan, combine rhubarb, cherries, brown sugar and butter over medium heat and stir until butter is melted. Cover and cook for 5 minutes. Stir and remove from heat.

2 In shallow dish combine breadcrumbs, parsley, garlic and thyme. Spread mustard all over pork and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll and press breadcrumb mixture all over pork.

3 In oven proof skillet, heat oil over medium high heat and brown tenderloin on all sides. Place skillet in 400 F (200 C) oven for about ► This recipe makes about 24 pieces.

20 minutes or until hint of pink remains and thermometer inserted in tenderloin reaches 155 F (68 C). Let stand 5 minutes before slicing.

4 Serve 1 pork slice on top of each baguette slice and top with compote. Repeat with remaining pork, baguette and compote.

Ingredients:

- 1/4 cup (50 mL) panko breadcrumbs
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) chopped parsley
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) chopped fresh thyme
- 2 tsp (10 mL) Dijon mustard

Cherry Rhubarb Compote:

- 1 cup (250 mL) chopped fresh rhubarb
- 3/4 cup (175 mL) halved pitted cherries
- 2 tbsp (25 mL) packed brown sugar
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) butter

'It's kind of awkward'

► After a big off-season makeover, Flyers are learning how to work together, Giroux says

JIM REYNO
@METRONEWS.CA

You go to high five, but you get a fist bump. You return the fist bump, and you're looking at a high five.

It's kind of like that right now for the revamped Philadelphia Flyers.

"It's kind of awkward a little bit in the room — half of the team are new players," said right-winger Claude Giroux, entering his fourth season with the Flyers. "We're just trying to get to know each other.

"It's just going to be a matter of time before we get comfortable and feel at home."

In the span of 23 minutes on June 23, the Flyers drastically changed the franchise by announcing two major transactions. They sent captain Mike Richards to Los Angeles for forwards Brayden Schenn, Wayne Simmonds and a draft pick. Then, veteran forward and London native Jeff Carter was dealt to Columbus for Jakub Voracek and two picks.

Meanwhile back in Ottawa, Giroux's phone was in overdrive.

"I just remember all of my buddies were calling me," he said about that day. "I was actually getting out of the gym, and my phone was blowing up — all my buddies were texting me and calling me.

► Claude Giroux of the Philadelphia Flyers had a career-high 25 goals, 51 assists and 76 points last season.

"When I heard what happened, like I said, I was shocked. Then I think in the next hour we signed Bryzgalov."

That's franchise goalie Ilya Bryzgalov, and that was a busy afternoon for the Flyers.

"When you see that, you know that you're going to have a different attitude and your team is going to go in a different direction," Giroux said about the transactions.

"With all the guys being at camp right now, they're all excited."

Carter and Richards logged a lot of minutes up front for the Flyers the past few years. Not anymore.

"There's a lot of spots and ice time to be taken for grabs.... It's going to be a great opportunity for anyone to grab those spots," said Giroux, 23. "Anyone that wants it, you've just got to go get it. It's available."

"You need to prove yourself as quick as possible, and I think that's why camp is pretty huge this year."

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

Aries March 21-April 20 You need to make the first move in personal relationships and Venus, planet of love, will help you today.

Taurus April 21-May 21 No matter how busy you may be, you must set aside some time for gazing at the bigger picture.

Gemini May 22-June 21 For some reason, everyone wants to be nice to you today. It's nice to be so much in demand.

Cancer June 22-July 22 Try to be a bit more forgiving of someone who has let you down.

Leo July 23-Aug. 23 You seem to be brooding on things that are over and done with. You cannot go back and change the past.

Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 If you need to approach a loved one or family member for assistance do so — this very minute.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Anything seems possible, but how much you achieve depends on whether you make an effort.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 You are incredibly ambitious of late, but don't be too pushy today.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 The planets urge you to form alliances with people who share your aims and ambitions.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 If you need to impress someone in a position of authority, do it now.

Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 The planets make it easy for you to get away from your current environment. Start your journey.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 You may be tempted to splash out on a luxury, but is that really a good idea? Think. ● SALLY BROMPTON

Sudoku
